GENERAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS

All exhibitors are expected to be positive towards the Christian faith and vision of He Is Alive and the Art of Faith Festival. This means that stands that go against these values (even if partially) can be excluded from the AOFF. The representative of He Is Alive will oversee this.

He Is Alive always reserves the right to (partially) refuse certain (sales or info) stands, both in advance and on the day itself. When registering, please clearly state what your initiative means so that we can prevent this.

Handing out flyers outside the booth is not allowed. Excessively intrusive behavior is not allowed either.

Only at a sales stand is it allowed to offer goods and/or services for sale. Sales stands may not sell food unless otherwise agreed. The goods and/or services sold must be approved in advance by He Is Alive.

It is forbidden to play loud music or make other noise that is disturbing to the festival, to other stands or to the visitors. The representative of He Is Alive will oversee this.

He Is Alive can never be held responsible for loss, theft or damage to a stand. The exhibitor is personally liable for his own stand. We therefore strongly recommend to continuously man the stand.

Exhibitors can only definitively count on their place on the Faith Market after approval by the representative of He Is Alive and after receiving the necessary payment.

Two free weekend tickets are provided per stand. Each additional exhibitor or assistant will be required to purchase their own admission ticket. Tickets are not included for partner organizations.

The general conditions that apply to the Art of Faith Festival also apply to the exhibitors. More info: www.artoffaithfestival.be.
